

About Responding to a Hoax

International Public Notice

The United States of America —
Federation of States

Certain people have been complaining that our American Government must be incompetent or naive for responding to documents circulated on the internet purporting that Donald Trump has appointed a "John Fitzgerald Lincoln Kahlooni Kennedy" to function as "President of the United States".

There is no confirmation nor proof otherwise, whether this document appearing on the internet is genuine or not.

We reply to our critics in this instance and any other similar instance that may arise: this whole country has been managed like a hoax.

Over three hundred different meanings of "United States" have been found.

Multiple governmental administrations of incorporated entities functioning as some version of "the United States" or "The United States" or simply "United States" have been discovered.

That's why we have to be at pains to ask which "United States" Mr. Kahlooni Kennedy may have been appointed to serve.

And our concern is well-merited. After the Civil War, the British Territorial U.S. Congress latched onto the assets of our American Federal Republic, which up until 1861 had been functioning under the same name as the Municipal Government: "the United States".

When they did this on February 2nd, 1871, without notice to the Federation of States and without notice to the people of this country, they began unlawfully, illegally, and immorally operating the American Federal Republic doing business as "the United States" at the same time as the City Government run by the Holy Roman Empire Successor to Contract was operating as "the United States".

So we have to inquire — which version of "the United States" is Mr. Kahlooni Kennedy purportedly the "President" of?

And you can now see why.

Another "UNITED STATES", the Municipal Corporation version, was bankrupted by Pope Francis and has been in trusteeship since 2015, before Mr. Trump's first term in office, so he never properly had control of that office of "PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES" and certainly can't claim any ownership of it now that that bankruptcy is settled and the assets awarded to us, the actual Americans.

Through all this rampant, crazy obfuscation and illegal latching and use of the same or very similar names for multiple different things, we, the American Government, have to tread our way.

At this point we are asking, “Is it Kahlooni or Cahlooni?” One is the name of a financier, and the other the name of Irish kings, but that doesn’t mean, necessarily, that the similar name “Kahlooni” is a name of the Irish kings.

It is by no means certain that someone named “Kahlooni” is even Irish.

The name Kahlooni is also common enough in India, where it appears to have been transported by certain members of the British Raj. Indeed, though not a common name, it appears to have spread across North Africa and other locations in the former Commonwealth.

Even the names “Fitzgerald” and “Kennedy” which appear to be of Scottish origin, are also used by Englishmen, who upon examination, appear to have named themselves after everyone else on Earth.

The name “Lincoln” is also a cipher. It’s origins are French and yet, “Lincolnshire”, presumably the home base of at least some “Lincolns” is British.

Now that we have gone through this tedious but necessary explanation, there is no way to know who anyone is or in what capacity they are operating, thanks to generations of British deceit.

There is no tradition or custom or agreement in any sector or part of the American Government nor among the Federal Government Subcontractors we ordained, allowing for the appointment of a President of the United States.

If Mr. Trump wanted to leave an office he possessed in our scheme of Government, he would simply hand it off to J.D. Vance, his Vice-President, not someone unknown and unelected.

Therefore, if this is not a hoax — which it could be — the likelihood is very high that some kind of British Naval substitution scheme is afoot— one trying to hide the fact that they stole the apparatus and assets of the original American Federal Republic (1787 to 1861) while also trying to confuse this organization with the recently bankrupted one.

We are inclined to think that the commencement of another British Substitution and Evasion Scheme is the most likely explanation of the mysterious “appointment” of a President.

Like a Pawn Shop Owner in possession of stolen goods, the British Territorial Subcontractor doing business as “the United States of America” — Incorporated, under Donald Trump, is in illegal possession of other property being operated as “the United States”— maybe a foundation or LLC or who knows, that is the shell of the original American Federal Republic.

Most likely, when the Municipal GOVERNMENT went bankrupt, the Brits had to come up with Plan B — which was to sneak in and create a British Territorial “Federal Republic” and pass it off as the restoration of the old American Federal Republic.

That would have solved two problems for them. They could have hidden their illegal possession of the assets of the original American Federal Republic behind this smoke screen and continued business as usual, since they illegally latched those assets back in 1871 and have been making use of them illegally ever since.

That didn’t work, so now, they are down to Plan C.

They’ve brought in, or newly created, an entity doing business as “the United States” — the same doing-business-as name that the States of America was using to run the original American Federal Republic, and now, purportedly, Mr. Trump has appointed Mr. John Fitzgerald Lincoln Kahlooni Kennedy to act as President of this “United States”.

If that’s what is going on, basically, a reshuffle or variation of their plan to substitute their “Federal Republic” for our Federal Republic — still a substitution scheme in which they pretend to be the bankrupt UNITED STATES instead, and try to commandeer the assets of the bankrupt Municipal Government away from us.

Unbelievable as it may be, the Brits are this deceitful and they are desperate to both maintain the control that they have had over America and also to hide their own criminality and breach of trust throughout this whole segment of our history.

The Brits, led by Donald Trump — who merely appears to be an American while he is in fact adopting British Territorial Citizenship — are desperate to hide their whole illegal and immoral and continuing Colonial Empire.

All the rest of the world should be equally desperate to put an end to their criminal behavior, expose the rats, and be done with the “British Empire” once and for all.

All they did was switch jurisdictions.

When people became outraged by their overt control of other countries and fed up with their continuous warring and asset stripping, the Brits pretended to comply with lawful demands that they vacate their colonies.

They appeared to comply, willingly, even meekly. The ease of their submission should have been a red flag and warning sign.

They simply moved their operations over into the jurisdiction of the sea and continued non-stop by incorporating their former land jurisdiction government organizations as maritime corporations.

So there was no end to the evils of colonialism, and yes, America has been a victim along with everyone else. The Brits commandeered by guile what they couldn’t take by force, and have been asset stripping us and using us as cheap mercenaries since 1861.

Their British colonialist empire is still here today, and their cronies in France, Belgium, and Germany are still trying to hold most of Africa in colonial era subjection, too.

So- have we responded naively to a hoax, or responded timely to a threat? It’s anyone’s guess. Expecting them to reply to honest questions is like expecting the puppeteer in a Punch and Judy show to break silence.

Now, however, the potential for more British skullduggery has been exposed, the possible existence of yet another scheme to commandeer the assets of the former Municipal UNITED STATES away from us via yet another British Substitution Fraud, is on the table for all to see.

Just imagine that you have a voracious ten year-old trying to get into the Cookie Jar by any means possible. And respond accordingly.

They need to have their hands slapped, the property of the American Federal Republic which they illegally confiscated in 1871 needs to be returned to the Americans, and they need to be kept on a constant disciplinary watch from now on.

And now, we pause to note that the Pope was already supposed to be providing this “disciplinary watch” under Ecclesiastical Law, because the Roman Curia created all these corporations as business models and the rest of the world allowed this with the understanding that these corporations would operate “lawfully” — meaning that they would be incorporated on the land, not the sea, and subject to land law.

If the intent had been to create and operate all these corporations in the jurisdiction of the sea, the language and requirement stated would have been that corporations are required to operate “legally”.

So, there is no international convention requiring the Pope to maintain oversight and disciplinary control of corporations that have been incorporated in Maritime jurisdiction; at the same time, there is no provision for the existence of such corporations at all.

The Roman Curia remains on the hook, because they created these “things” that have been used to rob, murder, and bedevil us.

The Brits have self-evidently slipped the leash and the cog once again, leaving themselves and their own limited Admiralty Law as the only disciplinary force standing over the Maritime Corporations that they created.

The simplest solution is the universal liquidation of all Maritime Corporations — which will force the commercial corporations to re-incorporate themselves under land law as intended, cease operations entirely, or reorganize as unincorporated businesses.

This is, in our considered opinion, one of only two ways to stop the lawlessness that has infected the entire planet: disallow the registrations creating corporations in the jurisdiction of the sea and withhold all public bankruptcy protection for them.

We note that effort has been made by the Curia to establish the Uniform Commercial Code and impose it on corporations registered in the air jurisdiction, but even this public attempt at administration has failed in that the public itself does not know and has not been taught how to use the Uniform Commercial Code and attempts to use it as an effective disciplinary tool against Maritime corporations have failed.

The complexity created by the proliferation of many kinds of corporations has been exacerbated by the creation of versions of these corporation structures in three separate jurisdictions — air, land, and sea, and all operating under different forms of law.

The lawyers and attorneys are confused by this and the General Public has been left totally in the dark, unable to even begin sorting through the confusions that arise as a result.

We are constantly assailed with bills that aren’t ours, double billings, failures to credit payments, corporations pretending to be “governments” when in fact they are merely corporations in the business of providing government services, and so on.

This has to stop —and the second and best way to make it stop, in our opinion, is to return all corporations to the jurisdiction of the land and to operations under land law as originally intended and agreed upon. Nationalize all of them.

And in the meantime, establish a moratorium on bills addressed to “individuals” — which results in bills being sent to living people who are then harassed and subjected to false claims in commerce.

Take notice! This whole circumstance requires immediate attention and peaceable resolution by the Roman Curia and the British Admiralty.

If we, as rational beings, don't get a handle on this circumstance and stop the practice of using "very similarly named" corporation franchises as a means of preying upon living people, there will inevitably be war — and not the euphemistic kind.

Unlike prior events, the organizations responsible will be self-evident.

Stop the roll out of 5G. All that will ultimately do is make a lot of people sick. Stop the introduction of AI in social settings as that will have the same result. Stop and get your horses and carts lined up in proper order and stop the "confusions at law" before you even think about surveilling the living people of this planet. Americans have the right to privacy and we retain it.
