

Continental Marshals Activated

International Public Notice

The United States of America —
Federation of States

Take Notice, all to whom these presents come: Notice to Agents is Notice to Principals; Notice to Principals is Notice to Agents.

Today, we held the public affirmation ceremony for our Chief Continental Marshal; after eleven years of development our volunteer peacekeeping replacement for the Federal Marshals Service is online, public, and activated. The distinctive Continental Marshals Service badge made of silver is activated.

The old Federal Marshals Service was defunded and the service protecting our international land jurisdiction, those officers charged with preventing interstate crimes such as kidnapping, human trafficking, drug smuggling, counterfeiting, interstate bank fraud and other crimes, was disbanded. This led to proliferation of crime and crime syndicates in specifically this unguarded jurisdiction.

Initially created as an answer to the loss of the Federal Marshals Service on May 22nd 2015, the Continental Marshals' Service has been under development ever since. As a volunteer peacekeeping force working directly under the supervision of the Federation of States, the CMS has faced many training, logistical, and tactical problems. The men who wear the badge of the Continental Marshals Service have undergone rigorous training and passed many tests with 95% or better scores.

To avoid confusion and mistaken identities we did not retain the name of the Federal Marshals Service, which has honorably retired through no fault of its own; instead, we named this new peacekeeping service the "Continental Marshals Service" as a reminder of the international land jurisdiction these men serve, and the "Law of the Land" which these men are bound to enforce.

The Federal Constitution upon which the Territorial and Municipal Constitutions depend, reflects the vital importance of the international land jurisdiction in Article VI, the Supremacy Clause, making it clear to our federal subcontractors and anyone else who has cause to examine federal service contracts, that all public employees are bound to honor the Law of the Land within the States of the Union and within the District of Columbia.

There is nothing discretionary about it and disparate claims that foreign service vendors can serve foreign masters while on our shores must come to an abrupt end together with restoration of a clear understanding regarding: (1) the supremacy of the Law of the Land; (2) the obligation of all federal and federalized State of State and federalized County/Borough/City employees to honor the Law of the Land while standing upon our land and soil; and (3) the duty of all federal employees, all federal agents and agencies, and all federalized government franchise services to honor all guarantees provided to non-citizen American nationals under the respective constitutional service contracts.

This includes and is not limited to the “good faith service” provisions that are self-evident on the face of every federal constitution and owed by every government service provider. All federal and federally-associated organizations and public employee personnel are instructed to pay special attention to the services, obligations, and prohibitions outlined in Article IV of all three federal constitutions.

The Continental Marshals Service and its Officers inhabit the highest interstate/international service jurisdiction and are specifically entrusted to enforce the Law of the Land on behalf of the States and People who are the Principals owed service under the Federal Constitution(s).

Today’s activation and affirmation ceremony reflects the public mission of the Continental Marshals Service and their unique role serving as the Peacekeeping Officers entrusted with enforcing international land law, our Public Law, and the Law of the Land — as embodied by our Federal Constitution.

The Continental Marshals Service is meant to operate in tandem with and in cooperation with the United States Marshals Service, which maintains their constitutional obligations in the international jurisdiction of the sea. Together these honorable services are meant to maintain a vigilant safety net for the American Public, on land and at sea.

The Continental Marshals have the power to train, direct, and deputize as many willing volunteers as are ready to serve this unique and vital jurisdictional element in our Public Safety net; online training courses and organizational descriptions are available.

Unlike County Sheriffs whose supreme peacekeeping authorities are limited to the physical borders of each county, or the State Assembly Militia Directors and Members whose peacekeeping functions are exercised only within the borders of their own state, the Continental Marshals and their Deputies are able and willing to pursue felons across state and territorial boundaries and may act as Bounty Hunters in international jurisdictions.

These Officers are fully recognized and empowered by the American Government and our unincorporated Federation of States, exercising the inherent rights of our member states in international jurisdictions, and the formerly delegated powers of the disabled American Federal Republic.

Take Notice, all to whom these presents come: Notice to Agents is Notice to Principals; Notice to Principals is Notice to Agents.
