You either oppose crime, or you become a criminal. That is the eternal truth. And as long as murder is a crime, genocide is a crime. It really is that simple.

Months ago, our Fiduciary Office brought forward the genocide in Gaza and condemned it. We, the American Government, stood with Algeria in condemning the carpet bombing of Gaza. We still stand against the genocide in Gaza and now, we stand with all of Africa against the genocide in Gaza.

Here's Burkina Faso's President Traore and all 54 nations of Africa laying it down on the United Nations:

There's no mistaking his message or the passion and logic behind it. He's telling the whole United Nations Organization and the member states that they are useless hypocrites and if they don't act to protect the people of Gaza from Israeli genocide, the United Nations might as well pack it in, admit that they are useless and immoral —and disband.

When he gets done telling it to them with one set of facts and logic, he flips it over and gives it to them again, with a slightly different angle, and slightly different facts and logic. If they couldn't get the message one way, he makes sure they get it another.

This is the most severe top dressing ever delivered in living memory, outside of a boot camp.

Traore goes through it as explicitly as a sledge hammer and he also demolishes all the petty excuses and political correctness and cowardice that people — and entire countries — use as an excuse to avoid taking action in the face of obvious evil.

Africa will have none of it, and neither can we; continuing to sell arms to Israel while Israel is engaged in genocide is a crime, and that is what Mr. Trump has been doing even after we have made it very clear that we consider Israel under Netanyahu a rogue state engaged in genocide.

This can easily turn into a genocide of Israelis as well as Palestinians, but nobody in Whitehall or DC seemed to think much about that.

Until now.

Years ago, our Fiduciary stood up and told the world the truth about the choices we all have to make:

If you don't oppose treason and report it, you commit it.

If you don't oppose genocide, you become an accomplice to it.

The current horror in the Middle East is directly attributable to the British Crown, which benefited itself by leasing land it never owned to Jacob Rothschild— leaving the actual owners, Jews, Muslims, and Christians alike, to suffer and bleed.

The same parties have operated the same way in this country, too, before, during, and after the so-called American Civil War.

The Perpetrators have secretly registered American babies as British Subjects- thereby “taking title” to us and to our land, without firing a shot or paying us a dime.

We, too, have been indentured and enslaved in the Land of the Free, our assets purloined, our labor taxed.

All this criminality has spread from one rogue state: England, and one rogue organization: the British Crown.

Stop a moment and ask yourselves: when did it become necessary for a young Captain, a soldier from a small African country, to become the world’s conscience? What does this say about us and the quality of our leadership?
