

The Cherusci, the Russians, and Prussians

International Public Notice

Here is what the devas at Wikipedia have to say about the Cherusci, the tribal people who, under the leadership of Arminius, destroyed Octavian's Legions in the Battle of Teutoburg Forest in 9 A.D. and prevented the Romans from crossing the Rhine for centuries.

"The Cherusci were a Germanic tribe that inhabited parts of the plains and forests of northwestern Germania in the area of the Weser River and present-day Hanover during the first centuries BCE and CE. Roman sources reported they considered themselves kin with other Irmino tribes and claimed common descent from an ancestor called Mannus."

Here is the history that needs to be known:

The Cherusci are the Sons of Mannaseh. The Khazars are of the House of Ephraim, but not his Sons. They arise from two peoples that were, long ago, literally descended from two brothers — whose progeny became estranged, so that their remaining Houses became enemies and adopted different faiths.

Who are the Germans who rule Britain to this day? Hanoverians. Dutch. Cherusci.

Who are the Rus from whom both the Russians and Prussians descend? Cherusci.

Who are the great sailors and military geniuses who guarded the rivers and other trade routes from the Baltic to the Black Sea? From the Levant to Spain? From Austria to Ireland? Across the Steppes to Constantinople? From France to the Holy Land. The Cherusci.

Why do the names of Arminius, Guillaume du Lac, Gotz von Berlichingen, Frederick the Great, and even Dwight D. Eisenhower echo in their own special Valhalla? They are all Cherusci.

They were and are mercenaries, soldiers, and merchants whose power stretched from Siberia to Turkey, from the borders of China and Persia to England, from Sweden to Spain — and beyond, to the New World.

They became the Progenitor race of Europe. In France, they are known as the Belle Chers, and gave rise to one of the most legendary warriors of all time, Guillaume “Lancelot” du Lac. Listen carefully to this included video and learn why, in our iconography, there is always an island in the middle of a lake — the “little piece of land” that gave Lancelot his name, or the vanished Avalon:

The feud with the Khazars has gone on for centuries and it encompasses far more than disparate religious faiths. It involves rejection of the practice of slavery and the belief that men can, with education, learn to discipline and rule themselves. It also involves a fearful grudge — their fear that we will remember and show them up, for the Khazars are not the Sons of Ephraim.

Where do you think the word “slave” comes from, if not from the Slavic peoples who were conquered by the Cherusci and sold by the Khazars?

In Germany the Cherusci were called the Prussians. Farther East, they were called the Russians. They are all the same tribal peoples, their DNA cast in a long, curving arch from the Pacific Ocean to Ireland and south to Spain.

Their traditional trade in armor and weapons and furs, cloth, silver and gold and jewelry, led one of the Cherusci clans living in far western France, the Armoricans, to follow the western sea routes to Greenland and down the Eastern Coasts of both North and South America, so that the Cherusci DNA takes another leap to the far side of the Atlantic and inland, ever westward.

These inveterate traders and sailors circumnavigated the world long before Magellan.

Now, suddenly, hundreds of years after the Great Earthquake spoken of in the New Testament, after the worldwide liquefaction described as the Great Mudflood, people have awakened as if from a hypnotic trance or half-sleeping daze, and they have looked around at the remainders of Tartaria which underpin modern Europe.

Neither the Prussians nor the Russians are a mish-mash of unknown origins; they are all Rus. They are, in the end, all Cherusci and they all stand under one Chieftain, the bravest one among them, the one who endures to the end — the King of the West and Monarch of the Western Sea. These are not titles or offices in the conventional sense; these are Offices of the Spirit traversing the land and sea. Thus our rightful ruler stands with one foot on the land and the other in the sea, and rules from the jurisdiction of the air.

The Roman Catholic Church knows this and knows our lineage. They are simply trying to avoid the Mender and the necessity of Confession. They are trying to play it out with the Strangers standing in our stead, but God will not be mocked. The victory will not be with them or any earthly monarch.

The Cherusci are merchants and soldiers and it is no mistake that they gave rise to both the Templars and Teutonic Knights after conversion to Christianity; the Khazars are merchants and scholars who object to giving up the income from human bondage and enslavement, which they still justify by denigrating their fellow man as "Goyim".

As the video included above presents, this information provided to the Registrar of the International Court of Justice acting as Trustee of mankind's inheritance, is not hard to document, not hard to discern, and not hard to prove from archeological remains, primary source literature, and most of all, DNA.

We are who we are, rising above the mud and the blood, and the deceitful destruction of Tartaria, by the same forces, families, and organizations that now seek the destruction of The United States.

The only problem presented by the Cherusci is that unlike other "indigenous" and tribal people, they are a Progenitor race, pre-dating smaller nations and populating vast distances, forming "blood treaties" by marriage across much of the northern and western hemispheres, and being traced as ancestors of many indigenous nations worldwide.

This is what we mean by a Progenitor race, and yet, the Cherusci are themselves a branch of the Indo-European family tree, which has its roots sunk deep into the fertile river valleys of Northern India and the Himalayas.

We, as the Spirit Masters of the Cherusci, object to racism, mindless superstition, enslavement, peonage, deceit, selfishness, pride, and greed; we have been blessed as we have been led, and so we pray always to be blessed and to be a blessing to the Earth and to the living people and to all life on this planet.

The Khazars have always tried to steal our blessing and are never content with their own. They fight and scheme and impersonate us, yet the gift of wealth and power is not their natural part and the rulership of Ephraim that they hope to inherit by adopting Judaism is not theirs.

After all that we have been through, all the attacks, all the book burnings, all the lies, we still stand tall among the ruins. We still say that the Truth is a complete defense.

We ask the International Court of Justice to reconsider their logic and the aim of their intent, to return the Earth to its rightful owners. We ask that they not make the mistake of dividing humanity against itself again. We ask that they honor all living people, all embodiments of life and spirit. Grant them all their heritage and respect, whosoever and wheresoever they are.

We have proven our knowledge and goodwill; we have endured to the end and await our homecoming. Let this Declaration stand along with our Declaration of Flag, as a Witness to the Nations of what is true, what is meant by the spiritual offices of “King of the West” and “Monarch of the Western Sea”, and by what heritage we have learned our lessons and come to you.

Let these presents find their meanings in your hearts.
