The United States of America —
Federation of States

The Big Lie was the Doctrine of Scarcity — the artificial deliberate creation of scarcity as a means to employ coercive power and manipulate access to commodities and performances.

There is actually a great abundance of everything on Earth, more than enough to guarantee everyone food, shelter, water, clothing, education and everything else they might need.

God is not a Deadbeat Dad.

Yet those pretending to be God's representatives on Earth conceived and operated this "doctrine" for their own political and economic advantage for centuries, and excused it using the theory that poverty promotes the development of virtue, similar to the idea that suffering is necessary to develop compassion.

Although both virtue and compassion can result from dire adversity, there is nothing in mankind's experience to suggest that both do not or cannot arise from rational contemplation and attunement of natural conscience.

Having overcome any excuse to continue the Doctrine of Scarcity, we have arrived at a time on Earth when the shadows of disease, death, and disaster can be removed, too.

There is no lack of anything. No lack of water. No lack of arable land. No lack of gold, silver or other metal. No lack of anything at all. The illusion of scarcity was just that — an illusion wrought by careful manipulation of information.

So — the abundance is here already, no need to seek it, mine it, define it, or package it.

The hold up revolves instead around who gets to deliver this abundance back to the people to whom it naturally belongs.

Do we allow the creation of two new monopolies (BRICS and QFS) fronted by the same people who set up the first harmful monopoly? And let them continue to control distribution of both actual assets and credit related to those assets?

Or do we do something completely different, which is decentralized and direct, so that there are no monopolies and no control by the same old comptrollers, and relatively speaking, no middlemen?

—which is the position taken by the Global Family Bank and our Prosperity Network.

The militaries which have been the handmaidens of the old system are having a hard time accepting the change, despite their poor performance and the misdirection they have suffered — they still want to control everything and everyone, because they associate control with “security”.

This implies that mankind needs more and more and more security and at the same time, less and less and less accountability and ownership interest — a proposition which is in stark contrast with Nature and Universal Law.

Treating us like babies and appointing themselves our caregivers does nothing to progress the advancement of justice, reason, or evolution. All it does is set up a situation where one group, the beneficiaries, are preyed upon, and the other group, the trustees, suffer the temptations of ultimate power.

Ultimate power corrupts groups of men just as surely as it corrupts individuals. We should flee from the creation of any such singular power, whether a king, a caesar, an emperor, or an oligarchy. All these forms of government have failed repeatedly, miserably. All have fallen into deceit, despotism, and tyranny.

We need a new system built upon the most successful administrative systems of the past, but lacking the coercive and unnatural powers of monarchies, oligarchies, and yes, democracies which enshrine mob rule and political manipulation.

Americans need to observe that we have always had a republican form of government, not a democracy; the only democracy in view here is the democracy favored by the British Territorial Government subcontractors operating under a service contract known as The Constitution of the United States of America.

So all this talk about “our” democracy, and “protecting our democracy” — is them talking about their democracy, with no mention of the need to protect and serve our homegrown American government.

There is a profound difference between public administration of services and government — as the word “government” itself reveals.

The word “government” openly admits to mind control. It admits to setting up first mental-emotional and then institutional values that people accept — “consent to” — as a basis for organizing service delivery and imposing standards of behavior.

The American government espoused by our Founders supremely values the individual and individual rights, freedom, and protections. They deliberately enshrined a value system that says we are all equally important, all equally owed the protections of the law we adopt, and we are all to be cherished and uplifted. All.

So that is the basis of our consent.

The present hold-up isn't about lack of abundance to meet everyone's needs, it's about who gets to distribute the abundance and why and how.

Let all people take notice; what is holding back the beginning of universal abundance is men scrabbling over control of the distribution — one side that has already woefully failed the trust, and one that is brand new, never been done before.

We, the living people, are not omnipotent. We don't know "for sure" the outcomes of our aspirations. Our part is to envision what we want as clearly as possible, and then do our best to cooperate with Universal Law and bring that vision to fruition

The people of this country and the living people all over the world have envisioned a world of peace and respect, abundance and simplicity.

We tried to achieve that via the Rothschild-Rockefeller banking central banking system and it failed; corruption set in and monopolies were established and used to coercively control those they were meant to serve.

Under our Law, there can be no coercive monopolies. Under our Law, each individual living man or woman is guaranteed their individual abundance, their freedom and their joy — not the burdens and intrusions of a surveillance state guarded by Artificial Intelligence.

When viewed from this perspective, the viewpoint and value of the individual living being, we all have skin in this game, and we all stand to gain all that we ever hoped for. There is no "other side" that can argue against our solution, because nobody is being oppressed or treated unfairly. Everyone — absolutely everyone — benefits and not by a small measure.

So, where, now, is the crying and the injustice? It is gone as if it never was, and the blessing of peace is begun. What is the purpose of "politics"? It has none. Racism? Not rational. Religion? The true God is One, not broken into pieces.

The truth is true forever.

We cannot guarantee that there won't be struggles and mistakes; we cannot guarantee flawless performance; we cannot guarantee that corruption will not seek to choke the tender seeds and tendrils of this new beginning. We still need the guidance and help of Divine Providence, not because there is not abundance enough to go around, but because people are confused and needing insight into their own nature. That insight will end all fear.

We call upon the militaries of the world to set fear and anger aside, to stand in honor, and with a true will to establish justice and peace for all people. Accept the vision of the Global Family Bank and our bilateral banking system that delivers directly to the people, individual by individual, worldwide.

You, too.
