The United States of America —
Federation of States

We mentioned this scam in another recent IPN concerning our National Credit.

The decision to impersonate our country and our people was most likely a no-brainer for the British Territorial Armed Forces responsible for this Gross Breach of Trust and violation of their service contracts.

Impersonating the Enemy is an old wartime trick that the British Navy perfected during its long struggles with various foreign fleets. They would routinely capture merchant vessels as prizes on the High Seas, board them, replace the Dutch or French or Spanish crew with English sailors, and sail on under the foreign flag as if nothing had changed.

This was perfected during the Napoleonic Wars and anyone interested or doubting that this was the template for what they later did to our government and our people, can read all about the “glories” of British Naval impersonation in C.S. Forester’s Horatio Hornblower Saga or Patrick O’Brien’s somewhat similar series that starts with “Master and Commander”. These fictional renderings of British Naval History don’t stray far from the truth and are based on actual practices and incidents that occurred a generation or two before the Civil War in America.

It’s important to note that the so-called American Civil War was a Mercenary Conflict and that the Law of War never applied to it or its aftermath. It’s equally important to know that the soldiers and sailors who fought in this mammothly destructive conflict were not aware of the fine differences between an illegal mercenary conflict and a war.

As one veteran said, “It all bleeds the same.”

It does mean, however, that acts they undertook while thinking and believing that they were at war might have been within the boundaries of proper action in time of war, under the Law of War on land or the Law of Admiralty on the sea, but were clearly criminal when undertaken as civilian mercenary forces in either jurisdiction.

160 years after the fact is a long time coming, but the fraud, force, false representations and acts of impersonation have come to the fore and now must be understood for what they are.

In the mid-nineteenth century the craze for incorporation of business interests was just getting to a boil in America. Many Americans were ignorant and simply took the advice of attorneys when they incorporated their family businesses.

Understanding, however, that corporations were often referred to as “ships of state” in Admiralty situations, helps shed light on the way Europeans and especially the British viewed corporations operating in Maritime and Admiralty jurisdiction.

Corporations in the British view, were “ships made of paper”, subject to all the same rules and laws as ships, so naturally, when the opportunity arose to impersonate our country and impersonate our people, they hauled out their old Book of Tricks from the Napoleonic Era and the Naval Distributions Act, and swapped crews and sailed under our flag and pretended to be us.

Their malicious intent and their pre-planning to attack and continue to attack American “shipping” in general is adequately demonstrated in the Naval Distributions Act of 1864 and their failure to declare peace at sea once the armed hostilities ceased.

The last shot of the American Civil War was in fact fired by a Confederate ship in the Bering Sea, the C.S.S. Shenandoah, in the summer of 1866, but no peace declaration was forthcoming from Her Majesty or her Majesty’s Government. In fact, it took a naval blockade by the Russian Navy acting under the American-Russian Alliance of 1858 to keep the British Navy from bombarding our shores and swarming our ports in the wake of the so-called Civil War.

They had to be content with messing with our corporations and our trade and our commerce as “ships of paper” instead.

Their first and greatest impersonation was accomplished under color of law, as they substituted their very, very similarly named corporation doing business as “the United States of America”- Incorporated— for our unincorporated Federation of States doing business as The United States of America — Unincorporated.

They got away with this similar names deceit and substitution by abusing a position of trust as a Federal Government Subcontractor already employed by our American Government, under The Constitution of the United States of America, by acting under color of law, and by failure to admit that the Civil “War” was an undeclared Mercenary Conflict like the Vietnam “War”.

All the gullible public could observe was a change from The United States of America to the United States of America. That was the first British impersonation trick. A very similar substitution fraud scheme was employed to replace American service corporations doing business as, for example, The State of Wisconsin, with British Territorial organizations doing business as the State of Wisconsin.

The change from “The” to “the” was hardly noticed by anyone but attorneys and lawyers, who by one means or another, were encouraged to keep their mouths shut.

You might think that impersonating our country and our governments at both the Federal and State levels would be good enough, but the impersonators were not done yet.

Over the course of the fifty years following the so-called Civil War, the British Federal Subcontractors and their Roman Municipal Cohorts who were also Federal Subcontractors, developed and implemented a complex three-step public trust fraud that impersonated American babies — not once, not twice, but three times.

This scheme required “latching” onto the babies via undisclosed registration of each one as an orphan “abandoned” on the “battlefield” and assumed to be a “ward of the State” — or to be more precise, the British Territorial “state-of-state”.

It comes as a great surprise to millions of American parents to learn that their sons and daughters were presumed to be wards of a foreign government, that they were listed as “orphans” and as “bastards surrendered” by “unwed mothers” and this gigantic misrepresentation and impersonation fraud was carried out first by Bureaus of Vital Statistics and later by various State-of-State level offices.

This resulted in unconscionable unlawful conversion of the political status and nationality of the victims, serving to convert them into British Subjects without their knowledge or consent.

This is a capital crime under both the Geneva and Hague Conventions; however, as the parents were never given any disclosure about the paperwork they were signing and the baby was too young to know, it remained a secret and unconscionable crime so far as the victims were concerned.

An American Infant Decedent Estate was presumed to exist and available to be latched onto and “salvaged”, while a British Territorial replacement was ginned up out of thin air — a British Subject deemed to be a pauper and ward of the state-of-state until he or she reached the age of employment and was then recognized as a "Taxpayer" — a Warrant Officer in the British Merchant Marine Services, whose duty is to collect taxes and tariffs for the British Crown. This Person was declared "lost at sea" when the parent corporation they purportedly belonged to was bankrupted, and the Roman Municipal United States Government stepped forward to form a Roman Inferior ESTATE trust in the name of the victim of all this targeted aggravated identity theft.

The impersonation schemes thus ran a whole gamut, from impersonating The United States as "the United States" Incorporated, and impersonating The United States of America as "the United States of America" Incorporated, to impersonating our state-of-state organizations, to impersonating individual Americans.

The goal was not only to defraud us out of our property, but to control us and our property. These venal thefts of our identity, our land, our money, and our credit were carried out under color of law, conditions of secrecy, and False Pretense of "war".

Some people are still having a hard time understanding this maze of impersonations and false identities, but basically, from April of 1861 onward, the Brits and Successors of the Holy Roman Empire were impersonating our lawful American Government and claiming to "represent" us in harmful and deceitful ways, substituting their own interests for ours, substituting their organizations for ours, disgracing our good names, leaving us to pay their debts, and causing no end of misery here and abroad. They even had their "Esquires" occupying our courts and practicing a form of personage and barratry against us, while they continued to take their paychecks out of our pockets.

The Perpetrators have attempted to excuse this by claiming that this was "warfare" and by claiming "emergency powers" never granted to them, but in the end, their crimes and their cruelties are self-evident and they stand condemned for it by the American People and by all the other nations that have suffered as a result of their deceit, bad faith, low character, and criminality.

Take home message — those foreign corporations sitting in Washington, DC, using names deceitfully similar to ours — are not the American Government and they haven't represented the American Government in good faith since at least 1861.

There are indications that the deliberate usurpations and substitution schemes against our American Government began even earlier. More research remains to be done, but we suspect that when Andrew Jackson paid off the war debts of the British Territorial Government using our money to do it, he began the rampage of the U.S. Army, Inc. and U.S. Cavalry, Inc. that led to the Trail of Tears, the Sioux Uprising of 1862, and ultimately to the Civil War itself — and all for no better reason than racial prejudice and greed and covetousness.

Look sharp, now. For the past 160 years a few devoted souls have kept the original American Government alive and kept our Post Office and our seat of our national government in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, alive. Only about 900 of us showed up and signed the Postal Treaty of the Americas in 2010 — a group the size of a small village left to hold the torch for all of America.

But hold it, we did.

Where were all the other Americans? Unaware that they were being impersonated as British Subjects and/or as Roman Municipal citizens of the United States. Unaware that they were in danger of losing their national seat of government.

People have expressed concern that there appeared to be so few of us left, but this is a matter of inheritance, not politics. Inheriting does not require large numbers. It only requires people who still remember who they are, who still cling to their lawful national governments, and who still serve the ideals that founded our country.

We have no doubt that as soon as people grasp what happened here and how they have been perniciously misrepresented as British Subjects and Roman Municipal citizens of the United States — and how they very nearly lost everything, they will come thundering home like a herd of buffalo.

We will hear millions of them proudly declaring their birthright political status, claiming their land holdings and homes, their businesses, their Good Names, copyrights, trademarks, and patents; they will be busy enforcing their treaties and contracts, waving their peacetime flag, and participating again in their government. Their courts will again reign in their courthouses. And when they speak of freedom, it will ring true, as they experience it again.

We say, welcome home, America! And immediately, we will be welcoming home all our brethren in every country of the world that has been impacted by similar scams and impersonations. Welcome home, Australia! Good to see you, Germany! Blessed be, Africa!

Happy Homecoming Sweden!.... England, you finally made it home! Jamaica! Haiti! Welcome home- no more poverty!

We will close the door on a period of human history that has been violent, deceitful, and criminal— and put it in the rearview mirror, with prejudice.
