

What Is Actually Happening With the Judges

International Public Notice

The United States of America —
Federation of States

We pushed back.

That is what is happening, and no, the "we" here has nothing to do with innocent Americans taking to the streets to protest rampant government craziness or misguidedly protesting Donald Trump as if he was "the" problem.

Donald Trump is on the receiving end of a situation that started during the Obama Administration, so please, don't blame him for what he inherited, and we will try to maintain the same mercy toward other politicians and bureaucrats.

Including all the Federal and State of State and District Court justices and judges who are suddenly stepping down.

What is actually happening is that these justices and judges are all running Administrative Courts under colorable Admiralty Law. And they haven't been administering justice; they've been administering foreign estate trusts that shouldn't exist in most cases. On top of that, they've been doing what they do incorrectly. And profiting from their "mistakes".

The only other courts operating at this time are British Equity Courts that shouldn't be addressing Americans, and our own American Common Law Courts that are just now being restored at the State Assembly level.

These Administrative Courts have been accepting cases and mis-administering them, resulting in violations of trust law and aggravated identity theft — and not only are they bungling the administration of these cases and taking part in the crimes, by not doing the accounting owed to each one of these cases, they are the ones making it look like the creditor is the debtor.

Then, using this "lapse" on their part to: (1) front false claims in commerce against the victim, they (2) evade their own tax debts for the unjust enrichment they receive as a result of this criminal activity.

This has been going on since 1865 and went into hyperdrive with the Sixteenth Amendment (which was never ratified by our States of the Union).

So all these judges and justices have been acting as bankers and not doing their jobs, is what it amounts to. Worse than that, they have been promoting a form of fraud and racketeering.

When they don't do their jobs, and instead promote property crimes against the American people, they get fired, they get jail time, they are looking at a career change big time, they are looking at the loss of their pensions, and they and the courts and political subunits they work for are looking at fines. Lots of fines. Big fines. Huge fines.

The size of the fines coming back to us doesn't make us feel good, because these yahoos are cutting the checks from our own trust funds and managing a trust that shouldn't even exist.

That's another whole problem.

But all these sudden departures from the bench? It has nothing to do with Trump or his Administration. It has to do with them and the "judicial courts" they run being caught racketeering and evading the IRS — and unlike the rest of us, these guys actually do owe Federal Income Taxes.

You will see a lot of District Attorneys disappearing, too. You will see a lot of court cases being dropped, exonerated, and disappeared as the rats try to cover their tracks and reduce the fines they owe.

None of it has to do with Trump. He isn't bringing the actions against them. They are just using him as a convenient scapegoat and excuse for their own dishonesty and/or lack of competence.

As we have and will put it to the government employees at all levels — there are only two (2) choices: (1) you knew about the fraud and pillaging and did nothing about it, becoming an accomplice to it, or (2) you didn't know and you're incompetent.

They are getting the same choice they have given us every two, four or six years since they substituted the political party system for the public elections we are owed — would you like raspberry or chocolate @#%3?

Given that choice, and the likelihood that they will go to jail and/or be bankrupted if they don't — or even if they do, based on their past performance — they are stepping down.

We aren't sorry to see them go.

These prosecutions of the judges and judicial courts and district attorneys are part of why the Internal Revenue Service and the US Tax Court are still around — to assist us in prosecuting these crooked federal and state-of-state court officers.

Expect to see entire courts vacated and locking their doors, and then entire administrative court systems vanishing like circus acts.

It's okay. The only valuable service they were providing was renting space in office buildings and we can use the space ourselves for our own courts. And we can find other tenants.

This country has suffered under the scourge of these "carpetbagger courts" operated by British Crown commercial corporations since May of 1865.

Take a deep breath. Try to imagine how much they have embezzled from average people and from our legitimate government. Just try.

They have only one choice — do the accounting and do it right, so that the living people occupy their rightful place as the creditor and are not harmed by the charges brought by the administrative courts, or quit, go back to England or the District of Columbia, and stay there.
